

Unload

Nick says – A problem shared, is a problem halved or so they say.
There's nothing more painful than pent up emotions.

Suddenly everything seems clear

The roles, the hopes, the fear, the pain

The light inside you fades

If only I'd known sooner, If only you'd just said

And shed some light on things not right

And unload it all on me, unload on me

Memories are what you make of them

They're reflections of the past

They buoy you up and they'll drag you down

Forever ingrained on hearts and branded in memory

The night, the day, the sun, the rain

Forever they will be, Unload on me

When the poison inside you rages

And it feels like you could cry

And the blanket of bitter anger, seals it all inside

Then the toxic wave it washes over you

And there's nothing you can do

Unload on me